

SOCIAL MEDIA GUIDELINES

The Lilac Bloomsday Association supports constructive, healthy, and relevant dialogue in our online communities. By participating in Bloomsday-related forums, you agree to follow these guidelines for the benefit of our participants, community partners, volunteers, staff and stakeholders.

Be respectful.

With over 50,000 race day participants, we're all bound to have varying viewpoints; please respect each other. We are a family-friendly organization, so please keep the conversation free of any profanity, threats, and negativity.

Be relevant.

Stay focused on the conversation, avoid speculation, and stick to appropriate subject matter. This is a community forum, not a place to spam or solicit your goods/services, get on soapboxes, or get off topic.

Be real.

We value honesty and integrity, and ask you to not misrepresent yourself or speak on behalf of others without their permission.

Moderation of posts, comments and users.

The Lilac Bloomsday Association facilitates these online forums for the benefit of the community. Any user who does not abide by the guidelines may result in having their posts or comments moderated, which may include editing, hiding and deleting of content. We reserve the right to ban users who frequently or maliciously violate the guidelines.
